Lithuania's third largest city is located on the narrow strip of the Curonian Spit, Klaipėda. Yachts may paddle through it in the Curonian Spit Harbour at Nida. It is a quiet place with picturesque sandy beaches and forests, and south of the River Nemunas is located the Curonian Lagoon, also called the Baltic Sea Curonian Lagoon, and the River Nemunas. It is recommended that yachts sail along a deep channel on the side of the Curonian Lagoon. Sometimes outward bound, the Curonian Spit is visible from as far as 25 nautical miles offshore. Volunteers and visitors are welcomed at the Curonian Spit. This place has always been a part of Lithuania, in 2000 the Curonian Lagoon was enlisted into the UNESCO World Heritage list.

The Curonian Lagoon is a bay of the Baltic Sea. The northern part belongs to Poland and the southern part belongs to Russia. The international hydrographic marking system is used in the Curonian Spit Harbour.

At the entrance of Klaipėda port, the Curonian Spit is about 1 km wide and 30 m deep. The river, however, is about 100 m wide and 4.0 m deep. The Curonian Spit is an area of the Curonian Lagoon, and the River Nemunas. It is recommended that yachts sail along a deep channel on the side of the Curonian Lagoon. Sometimes outward bound, the Curonian Spit is visible from as far as 25 nautical miles offshore. Volunteers and visitors are welcomed at the Curonian Spit. This place has always been a part of Lithuania, in 2000 the Curonian Lagoon was enlisted into the UNESCO World Heritage list.

The Curonian Lagoon is a bay of the Baltic Sea. The northern part belongs to Poland and the southern part belongs to Russia. The international hydrographic marking system is used in the Curonian Spit Harbour.

At the entrance of Klaipėda port, the Curonian Spit is about 1 km wide and 30 m deep. The river, however, is about 100 m wide and 4.0 m deep. The Curonian Spit is an area of the Curonian Lagoon, and the River Nemunas. It is recommended that yachts sail along a deep channel on the side of the Curonian Lagoon. Sometimes outward bound, the Curonian Spit is visible from as far as 25 nautical miles offshore. Volunteers and visitors are welcomed at the Curonian Spit. This place has always been a part of Lithuania, in 2000 the Curonian Lagoon was enlisted into the UNESCO World Heritage list.

The Curonian Lagoon is a bay of the Baltic Sea. The northern part belongs to Poland and the southern part belongs to Russia. The international hydrographic marking system is used in the Curonian Spit Harbour.

At the entrance of Klaipėda port, the Curonian Spit is about 1 km wide and 30 m deep. The river, however, is about 100 m wide and 4.0 m deep. The Curonian Spit is an area of the Curonian Lagoon, and the River Nemunas. It is recommended that yachts sail along a deep channel on the side of the Curonian Lagoon. Sometimes outward bound, the Curonian Spit is visible from as far as 25 nautical miles offshore. Volunteers and visitors are welcomed at the Curonian Spit. This place has always been a part of Lithuania, in 2000 the Curonian Lagoon was enlisted into the UNESCO World Heritage list.

The Curonian Lagoon is a bay of the Baltic Sea. The northern part belongs to Poland and the southern part belongs to Russia. The international hydrographic marking system is used in the Curonian Spit Harbour.

At the entrance of Klaipėda port, the Curonian Spit is about 1 km wide and 30 m deep. The river, however, is about 100 m wide and 4.0 m deep. The Curonian Spit is an area of the Curonian Lagoon, and the River Nemunas. It is recommended that yachts sail along a deep channel on the side of the Curonian Lagoon. Sometimes outward bound, the Curonian Spit is visible from as far as 25 nautical miles offshore. Volunteers and visitors are welcomed at the Curonian Spit. This place has always been a part of Lithuania, in 2000 the Curonian Lagoon was enlisted into the UNESCO World Heritage list.